Please Note:

This guide to the Timor papers of the late Dr Andrew McNaughtan was prepared during two intensive weeks of work in 2006.

This guide is the one available to researchers at the Mitchell Library in Sydney where the collection is housed for public access.

I am preparing an alternative version of the guide which will offer a more accessible thematic or subject approach to the collection (rather than the present simple 'box list' of contents).

A running sequence of numbers for easy folder identification from the printed list. These numbers are recorded in pencil on the top left-hand side of the folders.

Folder Title

Folder Titles are recorded in pencil on the top right-hand side of the folders. Existing filing system folder titles have been retained and recorded here as written. Unlabelled folders or unsorted piles of material have been given a title during the sorting process. These file titles are enclosed in [square brackets].

Appendix 2: Notes on Collection content, arrangement and description

Original order

The arrangement of the materials as documented here reflects only some of the original order of the materials as housed and used by their owner and creator, Dr Andrew McNaughtan.

Some time after Andrew's death in December 2003, his Timor materials were gathered into cartons and removed to a commercial storage facility. This packing was probably not done with archival principles in mind, though it might be expected that originally co-located materials would largely be packed together.

In late 2005, former Timor colleagues of Andrew were invited to examine and do a preliminary listing of the content of the cartons. There may at this time have been some re-allocation of and repacking of materials.

Present order

The materials as presented to me for arrangement and description in February 2006 were processed in this way:

1. All materials found in labelled folders (several different groups) were preserved as found. Items in filing cabinet suspender folders were transferred to manila folders and give the same label (where extant) as the original folders.
2. All uncontained, disordered materials (several cartons) were sorted into rough categories which reflected either existing folder names (in 1. above) or major themes present in the collection (such as Correspondence, Timor Gap / Oil, Photo exhibitions, Balibo killings, Timor Aid).

This 'category sorting' was done on a carton-by-carton basis. Materials from a given carton were not combined with similar materials from other cartons – resulting in several folders with the same heading or theme (and which were distinguished from each other by numbers - see for example the 'Media' and 'Correspondence' series of folder headings in Boxes 7-9).

Other materials

The materials described here do not account for the total collection of Dr McNaughtan's East Timor materials. Other elements are:

1. A significant collection of original and derivative audio-visual material currently housed with the National Film & Sound Archive (documentation in preparation).
2. An extensive set of electronic documents and email files (1997-2003) from Dr McNaughtan's computers. Significant elements of printed documents and emails are scattered through the physical documents described here. Preliminary work has been done on listing the electronic materials. Decisions to made at a later date on access to these files.

Appendix 3: Notes on Photograph collection

1. Original order

This photograph collection was presented to the archivist in a state of high disorder. With the exception of a few elements in the collection being in defined packets or albums, most were bundled together in a complex mix of formats (prints, negatives, 35mm slides) and provenance (original images from multiple - sometimes unidentifiable - sources, mixed with derivative copies).

The arrangement of materials here does not reflect, to a large extent, the original order of the photographs as presented for processing.

2. Present order

In order to make some sense of the content, and to assist retrieval, it was necessary to create a largely 'artificial' arrangement of the material. The 'IDs' and 'Titles' were created for this purpose; they were not present in the original collection.

The following 'protocols' were applied to achieve this present order.

- a.) Pre-existing 'sets' of photos were retained intact.
Examples: Px 06, 07 (found in small plastic albums); Px 45 (slides originally found in Lever Arch Folder).
- b.) Other 'sets' were created using evidence of image content & quality as well as annotations on reverse side of prints (labels, numbers, print-shop data).
Examples: Px 08-12 (hand-annotated on reverse with alpha-numeric identities); Px 03 (unique typed labels on reverse of prints).
- c.) Stray images were reunited with unambiguously identifiable 'sets' at a.) and b.) above
- d.) Images not allocated to particular sets, were grouped together by 'theme'.
Examples: Px 21 – 'Defiance'; Px 22 – 'Violations'.
- e.) Attempts were made to identify and separate original source images from derivative copies made by AMcN for exhibition purposes.
- f.) Where possible, attempts were made to identify original source images for AMcN's largest and most circulated photo exhibition (table data refers to 'exhibition identities' in the form of Y## - Y denoting yellow sticker; ## denoting the number in the exhibition sequence).
Examples: See table data for Px 03, 33, 34

It would certainly be possible to achieve a finer, perhaps more accurate re-arrangement and identification of the collection using these protocols. Any shortcomings in the arrangement and description found here reflects the necessary limitations of time allocated to the task.

3. Removed items

What remains in this collection represents approximately two-thirds of the original bulk of the collection. The other third has been withdrawn – being (largely) duplicates or materials identified as belonging to third parties.
