Portait de la lutte de l'evêque de Timor Leste Carlos ximenes Belo et pour quoi il a reçu le Prix Nobel de Paix 1996

Following abuses and massacres in his country Bisop Ximenes Belo says he must speak out strongly. Appointed in 1985 when Timor Leste the former colony of Portugal which declared Independence in 1975 and was immediately invaded by Indonesia was already occupied and under Indonesian rule, many expected the young man in his 30s to be amenable to Indonesian ambitions to integrate the conquered territory. But the bishop multiplied the size of his flock in his own church and gradually received more and more support from the wider Catholic community speaking out against Indonesian abuses. Under pressure from more conservative senior Catholic bureaucracy in Rome (who removed his predecessor for speaking out) Bishop Belo says he will accept the Nobel Peace Prize only on condition that he can fight for the human values of Justice, Peace and Reconciliation'.

Dec 29 1996 two protestors climbed the fence of British Aerospace Aircraft factory to protest sale of British military aircraft Hawks to Indonesia previously used in Timor Leste. In 2007 (Australian)Kieron O Reilly and (Briton)Stephen Hancock were summonsed to appear at the High Court in London for breaking a civil injunction issued to them at the cost of 200,000 pounds to British Aerospace lawyers by the High Court. A small demonstration outside the high court gathers with banners denouncing the Arms trade and sale of British Hawks to Indonesia's regime guilty of genocide in East Timor , Ws of High Court and gathered demonstration, prayers and denunciation of the crimes being committed by BAE in East Timor , Words from the two summonsed, and interviews with them.

00 High Court London, Demonstration against Weapons trade sale of Hawk fighter bombers to Indonesia by BAE (British Aircraft Corporation) bu Christians against Weapons trade. Prayers outside High Court. 08 since invasion of East Timor by Indonesia Britsh Hawks have been continually employed in killing of one third of the population.BAE shd be on trial, Stephen Hancock and Kieron O'Reillyshould be acquitted for nonviolent action at BAE on Dec 29 1996 (a protest climbing a fence carrying a childs coffin to plant seeds at British aerospace breaking a lifelong injunction odering them to stay away from BAE) 11 Stephen Hancock talks about his day, spirits rising with the support. 12 30 we dont have any illusions but at least we will keep the debate going...till Britain cuts all ties with the Indonesian regime. 13 Kieron O'Reilly speaks. The invasion wd not have been possible were it not for Britain and the USa providing the weapons systems....many people here with us this morning...solution lies in prayer and nonvilent action...15 Timor ese present applaud 16 i/v Kieron O'Reilly. We will speak some truth to power. ..12 months ago 4 women acquitted for disarmng a Hawk aircraft ready for sale painted in Indonesian colours 20 prison is a dehumanising place but feel that nonviolent action the only way out of this mess...23 expect 6mons to 2 yrs..small compared to East Timor 27 i/v (English) Stephen Hancock. woke up feeling anxious ...Judge says the crime you are alleging is not Proximate, but the killing is around the other side of the world but the conspiracy is here and now...we got an injunction for planting seeds but BAE said they spent 200,000 pounds getting the injunction.
